

Name _____

How Riley Accidentally Fed the Internet All Their Secrets

Every time we use technology, we leave tiny bits of ourselves behind - our data. Read the story below about a normal day in a student's digital life. As you read, underline or highlight each moment where data is shared, and write the data type next to it in the margin or on the line provided: P = Personal B = Behavioral BIO = Biometric L = Location

Riley's Day Online

It's 7:05 a.m., and Riley unlocks her phone using face recognition. (_____)

As soon as the screen lights up, her smartwatch syncs the night's sleep data to a fitness app. (_____)

Before getting out of bed, Riley scrolls through social media, liking a few posts and commenting on a video of her friend's dog. (_____)

At breakfast, Riley asks a smart speaker to play a morning playlist. (_____)

The device records the voice command and uses it to recommend similar songs. (_____)

Between bites of cereal, Riley checks the school's online portal for grades, typing in her username and password. (_____)

On the way to school, Riley opens Maps to check traffic. (_____)

The app pings her exact location and predicts she'll arrive in 12 minutes. (_____)

While waiting at a stoplight, Riley gets a notification: "Try our new coffee shop nearby!" - an ad clearly based on where she is. (_____)

During class, Riley logs into a learning platform to take a quick quiz. (_____)

The site tracks how long she spends on each question and whether her answers are correct. (_____)

Later, during gym, her fitness tracker logs steps, heart rate, and calories burned. (_____)

That afternoon, Riley joins a video call with her study group. (_____)

The camera recognizes faces, and the platform collects usage statistics - including call length and which features she used. (_____)

Before bed, Riley scrolls through online stores for new sneakers. (_____)

After clicking a few ads and reading reviews, she notices that every ad on social media now shows shoes. (_____)

As she plugs in her phone, a quiet thought hits her:

"Wow... I didn't post much today - but my phone probably knows everything anyway."