Marathon Edit

Directions: Read the passage below carefully. It contains several errors where all and whole are misused. Rewrite the passage correctly, fixing each mistake to improve clarity and grammar. There are ten errors to find.

During the school's charity marathon, the whole of the participants gathered in the gym before sunrise. The principal encouraged the all students to give their best effort for a good cause. The whole the track was decorated with banners and balloons. As the race began, all the runners started strong, cheering each other on. Midway through, the whole of group of volunteers handed out water and snacks. The crowd cheered the all morning, waving signs and playing music. By noon, the whole of event was nearly finished, and tired runners crossed the line proudly. Afterward, the whole the cafeteria served lunch to everyone who helped. Teachers thanked all of the staff who organized the marathon, saying their teamwork made a big difference. It was the perfect day to remind students of the power of helping the all community.

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____