It was a busy morning in Mrs. Lee's classroom. The students were getting ready for their group science project. Emma was trying to tape her poster together, but the tape kept sticking to her fingers. She sighed and looked around. She began shyly, "Could someone help me hold this?"

Jayden walked over and said, "Sure, I can help!" Together, they smoothed out the paper and fixed it perfectly. Soon, their friend Sofia came by with a worried face. "I dropped my glue stick and can't reach it," she said. Emma smiled and bent down to pick it up. "Here you go!"

By the end of the day, everyone's projects looked great. Mrs. Lee said, "I'm proud of how you all worked together. Asking for help and offering help make our classroom stronger."
