Preposition Transformations

Directions: Each sentence below uses a preposition from a specific context. Rewrite the sentence for a new situation so that the preposition changes naturally to at, in, or on. Make sure the meaning stays logical and clear.

1. She is in school studying for her math test.
→ Rewrite it to describe her location outside of class, not the activity.
2. Dad works at the hospital every weekday.
→ Rewrite it to show he's inside the building, not just employed there.
3. The bird landed on the tree branch near the window.
→ Rewrite it to show the bird's general location, not a surface.
4. I met my best friend in the park yesterday.
→ Rewrite it to describe the specific entrance where you met.
5. The class starts at 9 o'clock sharp.
→ Rewrite it to refer to a part of the day instead of an exact time.
6. The family arrived on Friday evening for dinner.
→ Rewrite it to describe the exact time they arrived.
7. We sat at the table to play a board game.
→ Rewrite it to describe the items resting on the table, not the position.
8. My cousins live in the city near the museum.
→ Rewrite it to describe the specific street where they live.
9. Our team played on the field for the championship.
→ Rewrite it to describe being inside the locker room before the game.
10. She laughed at the joke until her sides hurt.
→ Rewrite it to show she's in the mood for laughter, not reacting to one joke.
