Teacher's Guide

- Begin by reviewing common beginning blends such as br, cl, st, tr, and sp. Explain that incorrect starters can change a real word into a nonsense word.
- For developing readers, read each sentence aloud and ask which word sounds wrong. Guide them to think about what blend the correct word would start with.
- For students who need a challenge, ask them to create their own silly sentence with a blend error and swap with a partner to fix.
- Encourage engagement by letting students illustrate one corrected sentence after they finish all items.
