Opinion To Objectivity

Directions: Read each paragraph carefully. Each passage contains biased or emotionally loaded words that reveal the author's opinion or attitude.

- Underline the biased or loaded words.
- Rewrite the paragraph below it, replacing those words with neutral, factual alternatives.
- After rewriting, reflect on how the tone changes when bias is removed.

1. The school board's ridiculous new dress code unfairly targets students who just want to express themselves freely. The rule bans "distracting" clothing, which is just another way to control what students wear instead of focusing on real learning.

2. The mayor's brilliant plan to renovate the city park will finally bring life back to our neighborhood. With stunning gardens and amazing features, this project proves that our leaders truly care about the community's happiness.

3. Electric cars are clearly the only responsible choice for modern drivers. People who still drive gas vehicles are selfish and careless about the planet's future. Everyone should ditch their pollution machines immediately.

4. The cafeteria's disgusting meals are an embarrassment to the school. Students are forced to eat soggy vegetables and flavorless meat that barely passes as food.
