

Name _____

Reader's Viewpoint

Directions: Read each short passage carefully. Then, identify the intended audience (the specific group the author is addressing).

1. Hey students! Ready to make your school a better place? Join Teens for Change, the club where your ideas actually matter. We're looking for energetic, creative thinkers who want to plan events, improve our campus, and have fun doing it. Bring your passion—we'll bring the snacks.

Intended Audience: _____

2. City officials met Tuesday to review next year's budget proposal. The plan prioritizes road repairs, park maintenance, and police funding. Tax rates will remain unchanged for most residents, though some business fees may increase slightly.

Intended Audience: _____

3. We need YOU to help make our annual Fall Festival a success! Parents are encouraged to sign up for shifts at the ticket booth, food stands, or games area. Your support helps fund field trips and classroom projects for all students. Let's make this event one to remember!

Intended Audience: _____

4. Adventure seekers who care about the planet—this one's for you! Discover the top 10 destinations where you can hike, explore, and protect the environment at the same time. From rainforest lodges to solar-powered cabins, these eco-friendly spots let you travel responsibly and still have the trip of a lifetime.

Intended Audience: _____

5. Researchers at the National Climate Institute have released new data indicating a steady rise in global temperatures over the past decade. The study highlights potential consequences for agriculture, water resources, and coastal communities. Further peer review is expected before policy recommendations are made.

Intended Audience: _____