Directions: Read the character setup. Then complete the four-step map to show how the character changes throughout the narrative. Use clear details that explain the beginning trait, the challenge, the response, and the final change.

A character who dislikes asking for help is suddenly responsible for completing a large group task at school.

1. Beginning Trait: Describe the character's starting trait or attitude.

2. Challenge: Explain the event or situation that forces the character to confront this trait.

3. Response: Describe how the character reacts to the challenge in the middle of the story.

4. Change: Explain how the character grows or changes by the end.
