Teacher's Guide

- Quick implementation: Explain that a funding gap is the difference between the money a business needs and the money it already has. Students subtract to find each gap.
- Differentiation: Provide a subtraction setup for students who need support, or allow calculators when the focus is applying business math rather than computation.
- Engagement: Have students predict which company has the largest funding gap before solving all eight problems.
- Extension: Ask students to choose one company and determine its remaining funding gap if it receives an additional $2,500 investment.
