(Answers will vary, but these are strong examples that use vivid "showing" techniques.)

1. She was nervous.

Sample: She tugged at the sleeves of her shirt and kept glancing at the clock, tapping her foot in a quick, jittery rhythm.

2. He was excited.

Sample: He bounced on his toes, grinning from ear to ear, barely able to stop himself from blurting out the surprise.

3. They were angry.

Sample: Their eyes narrowed, and their jaw tightened as they slammed their locker shut and stormed down the hall without a word.

4. She felt embarrassed.

Sample: Her cheeks turned bright red, and she looked down, covering her face with her hands as a few kids giggled behind her.

5. He was tired.

Sample: He rubbed his eyes, dragging his backpack along the floor, and yawned so wide it made the teacher stop mid-sentence.
