Real Patience Stories

Directions: Interview a classmate, teacher, or adult about a time they had to be patient. Listen carefully, take notes on what they share, and then write a short summary of what you learned from their experience.

1. Can you describe a time when you had to wait for something important?
2. What made that situation challenging or frustrating?
3. What helped you stay patient or calm during that time?
4. How did things turn out in the end?
5. What advice would you give to someone who struggles to be patient?

My Summary: Write a short paragraph describing what your interview partner shared. Include what you learned from their story and how you can use that lesson in your own life.
