Spot The Vague Or Weak

Directions: Read the passage below. Underline the strong details that help the reader picture the scene. Circle the weak or unnecessary details that are vague, general, or do not add meaning.

Lila stepped into the old library, where rows of dusty wooden shelves reached toward the ceiling. A soft golden light glowed from the lamps, making the room feel warm. She heard the quiet flutter of pages turning as someone read nearby. Lila walked carefully across the floor, which made some kind of sound under her shoes. She paused to admire a really nice painting of a ship on the far wall. The room smelled old but interesting, like forgotten stories waiting to be found.
