A Better Depiction

Directions: Rewrite each telling sentence so it becomes a vivid showing sentence. Use concrete details that help the reader see, hear, smell, or feel what is happening. When you are done, your rewritten sentences should form one descriptive passage.

1. Mia was nervous about performing in the school play.
2. The stage looked strange to her.
3. The audience seemed restless.
4. Everything felt overwhelming.

Rewrite each sentence using sensory details and specific description. Keep the order the same so your sentences form one complete passage.
