On Christmas Eve, Clint and his sister set up a small tent by the pine tree in their yard. They wanted to stay up late and listen for the soft wind as they watched the lights blink from the porch. Clint brought a warm lamp to keep beside them, and his sister held a gift she could not wait to print her name on. When a quick bump came from behind the tent, they both jumped. It was only their dog, wagging his tail in the crisp night air.
