Social Discussion Circle

Directions: Work in small groups. Read each discussion starter and take turns sharing your thoughts. Listen carefully to others and respond respectfully.

1. Imagine you're talking with friends in the hallway, and someone stands very close while you're speaking. How can you show respect for personal space in that moment?
2. You and your classmates are joking around during lunch, but one person looks uncomfortable. What could you say or do to make sure everyone feels included?
3. Your friend interrupts people a lot during group work. What's a kind way to remind them about taking turns to speak?
4. During a group project, someone uses a sarcastic tone that sounds rude, even if they didn't mean it. How could you handle the situation in a calm and positive way?
5. In an online chat for your class, a few students start posting unrelated comments. How can you keep the conversation respectful and focused without sounding bossy?
6. A teammate doesn't do their part during a game or project. What's a fair and polite way to address it without hurting their feelings?
7. A new student doesn't know your school's unspoken rules (like raising a hand before speaking). How can you help them fit in and understand the expectations?
8. When someone is upset during a group activity, what are some ways you can show empathy and support instead of getting frustrated?
9. If your class is voting on a group decision and your idea isn't chosen, how can you respond in a respectful and mature way?
10. What makes it hard sometimes to follow social rules, and what helps you remember them in group settings?
