

Name _____

Teamwork Triumph

Directions: Read the story carefully. Then circle the letter of the best answer (A-D) for each question below.

The Group Project

In Mr. Lopez's fourth-grade class, everyone was excited for the big science project. The groups were allowed to pick their own topics, and Ava's group chose to build a model volcano. At first, Ava tried to do everything herself because she wanted it to look perfect. She painted, glued, and even mixed the baking soda and vinegar without asking her teammates.

By the second day, the group wasn't talking much. Leo looked disappointed, and Mia whispered, "We wanted to help too." Ava noticed the frowns and stopped working. That night, she thought about how teamwork meant sharing jobs and listening to others' ideas.

The next day, Ava called a quick meeting. She asked, "What part do you want to do?" Leo measured the cardboard, Mia designed the poster, and Ava focused on the labels. When they tested the volcano together, it erupted perfectly-and everyone cheered. Mr. Lopez smiled and said, "That's what cooperation looks like." Ava finally understood that following group rules makes everyone feel valued.

1. What problem did Ava's group have at the beginning of the project?
 - A. They didn't know what topic to choose
 - B. Ava tried to do everything by herself
 - C. The volcano didn't work correctly
 - D. They ran out of materials
2. How did Leo and Mia feel when Ava didn't let them help?
 - A. Disappointed and left out
 - B. Thankful and proud
 - C. Excited and happy
 - D. Silly and amused
3. What did Ava do to fix the problem?
 - A. She started a new group
 - B. She finished the project alone
 - C. She gave everyone a job to do
 - D. She changed the topic of the project
4. What happened after Ava shared the work with her teammates?
 - A. The project failed
 - B. Everyone lost interest
 - C. The volcano exploded too early
 - D. The group worked well and succeeded
5. What lesson does this story teach?
 - A. Doing all the work helps you get ahead
 - B. Sharing and following group rules leads to success
 - C. Rules make projects boring
 - D. Teamwork is only for sports