Teacher's Guide

- Have students read through the entire data set before beginning.
- Ask students to add one tally mark each time an activity appears.
- Remind students that the fifth tally mark should cross the first four.
- For support, students can cross out each data value after recording its tally.
- For extra support, reduce the data set to the first 15 values.
- For a challenge, ask students to identify the most frequent and least frequent activities.
- Increase engagement by collecting class responses and creating a new frequency table.
- Extend the activity by having students make a bar graph from the completed frequency table.
