

Morning Mix-Up Answer Key

Corrected Story:

This morning, I got up late because my alarm didn't ring. I quickly got dressed and ran downstairs, but I realized I hadn't gotten my backpack ready last night. Mom told me to hurry, but I got so nervous that I dropped my cereal bowl. My dog got scared and started barking loudly. When I finally got to the bus stop, I saw the bus already leaving. I got upset but decided to walk to school instead. By the time I reached the gate, I got tired and sweaty, but at least I made it!

Teacher's Guide

- Skill Focus: This worksheet helps students recognize and correct tense errors with get, got, and gotten, reinforcing how context and time cues determine correct usage.
- Differentiation Tips:
 - Before starting, review key time words like this morning, already, and had to help students spot tense clues.
 - Allow emerging learners to work with partners to discuss each change aloud.
- Engagement Ideas: Have students act out the story twice—once using the wrong verbs and once using the corrected ones—to emphasize meaning and fluency.
- Extension Activity: Students can write their own short paragraph titled "My Mixed-Up Afternoon," purposely misusing get/got/gotten, then trade papers with a partner to correct.
