Global Footprints Answer Key

Sample Responses:

1. Globalization appears in daily life through international brands, streaming music from other countries, and global communication apps.
2. Technology connects people via social media, global news, and instant communication.
3. Students may argue globalization brings opportunities but also competition or cultural pressure.
4. Local examples may include international businesses, global cuisines, or exchange programs.
5. Trade and technology can create new industries but reduce traditional jobs.
6. Common challenges include cultural loss, inequality, and pollution.
7. Global citizens should act responsibly, support fairness, and protect the planet.
8. Communities can balance by celebrating local culture while welcoming new ideas.
9. Sample policies may include promoting renewable energy, fair trade, or digital education access.

Teacher's Guide:

- Skill Focus: Reflective writing, global awareness, and personal-to-global connection.
- Differentiation Tips:
  - For struggling writers, provide sentence starters such as "Globalization affects me when..." or "In my community, globalization shows up through..."
  - For advanced students, encourage deeper analysis linking economic, cultural, and environmental perspectives.
- Engagement Idea:
  - Begin with a "Global Object Show & Tell" where students bring an item or describe something from their home that connects to another country.
- Extension Activity:
  - Have students compile their reflections into a "Global Citizenship Journal" and share one entry that represents their personal vision for the future of globalization.
