Introducing Me Answer Key

Answers will vary. A strong response should:

- Begin with a clear and polite greeting (example: "Hello, my name is...").
- Include at least one interest or hobby.
- Share one personal fact or fun detail.
- End with a positive or welcoming tone.

Teacher's Guide:

- Encourage students to read their introductions aloud to practice tone, posture, and volume.
- For differentiation, provide sentence starters or a word bank for students who need writing support.
- Engage the class with a "Get to Know You Circle" where each student reads one line from their paragraph.
- As an extension, students can rewrite their introduction for different settings (for example, a classroom, an interview, or a club meeting) to understand tone and audience.
