Directions: Read the narrative prompt. Write two different endings that show how a single choice can change the direction and meaning of the story. Label them Ending One and Ending Two.

You are part of a student volunteer team helping restore an abandoned greenhouse behind the town museum. While clearing a vine-covered table, you uncover an old wooden box sealed shut with a rusted clasp. A folded note taped to the lid reads: Open only if you accept the risk. Write two separate endings that show different choices and consequences.
