Directions: Read the short personal narrative. Think about the most important moment. Create a title that fits the paragraph. Then answer the questions to help explain your choice.

Yesterday during art time, I reached for my paintbrush and knocked over a whole cup of water. It splashed across my paper and made the colors swirl together. I felt startled at first, but then I noticed the shapes looked interesting, almost like waves. I took a deep breath and decided to keep painting, turning the accident into something new.

Write a title that best describes the central moment of the paragraph:

1. What was the most important thing that happened in the paragraph?

2. How did the narrator feel when the moment first happened?

3. How did the narrator respond or solve the problem?

4. Why does your title fit the paragraph well?
