- Recognition that the central moment is the water spilling on the art project.
- Understanding that the narrator felt startled at first.
- Explanation that the narrator responded by staying calm and turning the accident into new artwork.
- A justification showing how the student's chosen title matches the event.

Teacher's Guide

- Use this worksheet to reinforce identifying the central moment in a personal narrative.
- Model how to underline key actions or feelings in the paragraph before choosing a title.
- Differentiate by providing a list of optional titles for students who need more support, or challenge advanced students to create two different titles and explain each choice.
- Keep engagement high by letting students vote on their favorite student-created titles.
- Extend the activity by having students write their own short narrative paragraph and create a fitting title for it.
