Middle Maker

Directions: Read the short story starter. The beginning and ending are already written. Your job is to expand the middle by adding meaningful events, details, and pacing. Write at least three new middle events.

Beginning: Sam was excited because his class was visiting the town museum for the first time.

Your Middle Section: Write three or more events that show what happened during the visit. Include clear actions, details, and pacing so the story does not jump from beginning to end too quickly.
