The soccer team carried their uniforms into the locker room, and each of the players hung up their jersey. Everyone were excited for the big game, and neither of the captains wanted to forget their speech. The committee of parents announced their decision to provide snacks, and every child promised to bring their own drink. Somebody left their water bottle behind, and the twins said he would return for it later. One of the coaches parked their car near the field, but Maria and Sofia walked back to his house together.
