Grant and his sister Bree set out early to explore the creek behind their grandparents' house. Grant carried a small brush to clear thick grass from the narrow trail. Bree brought a brown crate filled with snacks. As they walked, they heard a truck rumble on the road nearby and saw a frog leap across a broken branch. The pair crossed a grassy bridge made of flat stones and reached the creek in time to drop their crate on a dry patch of ground. They grinned and began their little outdoor picnic.
