

Ramadan Sentence Builders Answer Key

Student responses may vary; check for correct conjunction use and sentence structure.

1. We wake up early so we can eat suhoor before the sun rises.
2. Fatima brings dates to share, and everyone enjoys them at iftar.
3. We fast all day, but we still try to stay positive and kind.
4. The crescent moon appears, and Ramadan begins.
5. Zaid wanted to help others, so he donated food to the community center.
6. It is a long day of fasting, but we feel proud of our self-control.

(Other conjunctions that maintain correct meaning are acceptable.)

Teacher's Guide

Instruction Tips

- Review common conjunctions: and, but, so, because.
- Model one example and talk about how combining sentences makes writing smoother.
- Remind students to check commas where needed.

Differentiation

- Support: Provide a conjunction word bank for each question or allow students to choose from two options.
- Challenge: Encourage adding descriptive details (e.g., "We wake up early so we can eat a healthy suhoor before the sun rises.").
- ELL Support: Use gestures or graphics to explain conjunction meanings (e.g., "so" = result, "because" = reason).

Engagement Ideas

- Pair students for "Conjunction Coach" - one writes, the other checks for correct conjunction use.
- Conjunction sort: students sort example sentences by which conjunction was used.
