Teacher's Guide

- This worksheet builds the skill of separating verifiable facts from personal opinions in a realistic passage.
- For differentiation:
 - Have struggling readers underline signal words such as think, believe, best, and too before deciding.
 - Ask advanced students to rewrite one opinion as a fact using measurable details.
- For engagement:
 - Let students explain why one selected answer is fact or opinion before checking the key.
 - Hold a quick class vote on one opinion statement and discuss differences.
- For extension:
 - Have students write two facts and two opinions about their own school or neighborhood.
 - Connect this activity to opinion writing lessons in language arts or persuasive writing.
