Right Choice Roleplay

Directions: Read each short situation. Choose the best response from the options (A-D). Then act out your answer with a partner to show what a respectful or helpful reaction looks like.

- At Recess: Sam wants to join a group playing basketball, but they already started the game. What should Sam do?
 - Yell, "Let me play now!"
 - Wait quietly and walk away.
 - Ask, "Can I join the next game, please?"
 - Take the ball without asking.
- In the Classroom: Jamie accidentally bumps into another student while walking to his seat. What is the best thing to say?
 - "Watch where you're going!"
 - "Sorry, are you okay?"
 - Say nothing and keep walking.
 - Laugh about it with friends.
- Group Project: Sofia and Ben disagree on how to decorate their poster. What should they do first?
 - Yell until someone gives up.
 - Ask the teacher to pick a winner.
 - Ignore each other and work alone.
 - Take turns sharing ideas and listen to each other.
- Lunchtime Mix-Up: Alex sits at a new table and someone says, "You can't sit here." What should Alex do?
 - Calmly ask, "Is it okay if I sit here today?"
 - Say, "That's mean!" and storm off.
 - Push the tray away and leave the room.
 - Tell everyone they're being rude.
- Helping a Friend: Emma sees that her friend dropped her books in the hallway. What is the kindest choice?
 - Laugh and walk past.
 - Help her pick them up.
 - Tell someone else to do it.
 - Step over the books.
