Teacher's Guide

- Review the target place value before students begin each relay stop.
- Encourage students to point to the rounding digit and the digit to its right before answering.
- Provide a place value chart for students who need additional support.
- Let students work in pairs and take turns solving alternating relay stops.
- Add a timer for an optional accuracy challenge, reminding students that correct answers are more important than speed.
- Extend the activity by having students design a four-stop relay using their own numbers and place values for a classmate to complete.
