Teacher's Guide

- Review the value of each place before students begin the worksheet.
- Encourage students to circle the target place and underline the digit to its right before rounding.
- Provide a place value chart or number line for students who need additional support.
- Have students explain to a partner why a number rounded up or down.
- Turn the activity into a timed "rounding relay" where students solve one problem at a time and check with a partner.
- Extend the lesson by asking students to write their own large numbers and choose a place value for a classmate to round.
