Teacher's Guide

- Review one matching example before students begin.
- Encourage students to round both numbers first, then compare the rounded values before looking for a match.
- Suggest crossing off each answer choice after it has been used.
- Provide a place value chart or number line for students who need additional support.
- Let students work in pairs to explain why each match is correct.
- Challenge early finishers to write two new entries for Column A and create matching choices for a partner.
- Discuss how different original numbers can sometimes round to the same value.
