Teacher's Guide

- Encourage students to sound out each word slowly, listening for the clear sh sound at the beginning or end.
- Model one example together before independent practice to support early K readers.
- For students who need more support, allow them to sort the words first into two piles: words that sound like they have sh and words that do not.
- For an extension, ask students to choose two circled sh words and draw quick pictures to show their meaning, building vocabulary and comprehension.
