Fortune #1 - Predicted Tone: Likely humorous, ironic, or lighthearted. The idea of a dragon hating fire contradicts expectations, which suggests a playful or comedic tone rather than something epic or tragic.

Predicted Structure: A short narrative with a beginning, middle, and end. Probably one paragraph that includes a small conflict and quick resolution. Might follow a mini-story arc: setup → problem → twist → resolution.

Predicted Style: Descriptive yet concise. Imaginative language with possible sensory details ("smoke," "scales," "flames") used in a funny or exaggerated way. May use informal or whimsical diction.

Clues in the Prompt: "100-word story" → compact narrative structure. "Dragon who hates fire" → humorous contradiction guiding tone. "Story" → implies creative storytelling rather than factual explanation.

Fortune #2 - Prompt: "Explain photosynthesis to a group of five-year-olds using a bedtime story."

Predicted Tone: Gentle, warm, and friendly - likely soothing because it's a bedtime story. Simplified vocabulary with a nurturing or magical tone.

Predicted Structure: Narrative format rather than a list or explanation. Possible inclusion of characters (e.g., "Sunny the Sunbeam," "Leafy the Plant") to personify scientific concepts. Introduction → simple story → resolution or moral.

Predicted Style: Childlike and imaginative; may include repetition or rhyme. Simplified sentence structure. Lots of imagery related to nature, light, and growth.

Clues in the Prompt: "Explain" → still educational in purpose. "Five-year-olds" → signals simple vocabulary and short sentences. "Bedtime story" → narrative structure with soft, comforting tone.

Predicted Tone: Formal, respectful, and civic-minded. Persuasive but polite - professional tone suitable for government communication.

Predicted Structure: Standard email format: greeting, introduction, body with proposal details, closing statement, and signature. Likely includes bullet points or short paragraphs outlining specific recycling ideas or benefits.

Predicted Style: Clear, concise, and professional. Uses formal connectors ("Furthermore," "In addition," "I propose..."). Avoids slang or contractions.

Clues in the Prompt: "Formal email" → explicit instruction on tone and structure. "To a mayor" → audience of authority implies respectful language. "Proposing a new recycling program" → purpose is persuasive and solution-oriented.
